

CONSTRUCTION INDUSTRY COUNCIL REGIONAL CHAIR FOR YORKSHIRE & HUMBER

Name: Stefanie Stead

“Yorkshire is a fascinating county, and quite unlike others. Its landscape stretches from the industrial power houses of Sheffield to the farming communities of the Dales. The politics and culture of these areas – both past and future –informs the region’s built environment creating a diverse and dynamic construction industry”

Profession: Architect

Qualifications:

- BA (Hons)
- MA

Professional Institutions:

- Royal Institute of British Architects

Current workplace/projects:

- Has worked across Yorkshire on a range of urban design, heritage, residential, retail and educational schemes
- Leads the Education Team at Pearce Bottomley Architects and works directly with over 30 schools to deliver capital building projects, funding assistance and creative learning programmes.
- Regional Design Review Panellist for Yorkshire and Humber

Achievements:

- Judge for the York Design Awards 2012, 2013 and 2014
- Judge for The Construction Best Practice Awards Yorkshire 2012
- Judge for the RIBA Yorkshire Awards 2011

Interests:

- Architecture as a wider profession – exploring the possibilities of what ‘architecture’ is, and what it could be.
- Place narratives, whether historical, political, socio-economic or folklore. Indeed, stories – whether personal or created – allow a place to be reconsidered and interpreted in different and enlightening ways.
- Involvement of those who will benefit from the process in the process. By working with local communities, charities and schools, designs become relevant and long term. Stefanie has extensive experience of facilitating consultation and design workshops with a range of participants, ranging from Elected Members through to school children.

Location: Stefanie is based in York
